The diagram illustrates a network architecture with a shared memory switching fabric. The controller communicates with input ports 1 to N and output ports 1 to M. The memory interface is connected to the controller. The switching fabric manages data flow between the input and output ports.