

Figure 10.2 Illustration of a fabric that contains a separate physical data path for each interconnection. Interface hardware is needed to allow a port to specify the path for data being sent.