Figure 10.6 Illustration of a switching fabric that uses shared memory. The memory is used to pass data; a separate hardware controller is used to pass coordination and control information.